INTRODUCTION

This bibliography is more selective than comprehensive or exhaustive. It is primarily designed as a reference for those who wish to learn more about the life and achievements of Black women in cities in the United States. The materials listed cover the period 1872-1972. Many of the books and articles are out of print. However, a serious researcher can locate them in many of the Black colleges in the South. Moreover, many of the out of print books are presently being reprinted. Hence, many of these books will be available in the future.

Because of the present interest in Blacks in urban areas and Black women in particular, obviously there is a need for a bibliography of this kind. Perhaps, the most comprehensive and exhaustive one of this date is Johnnetta Cole's "Black Women in America: An Annotated Bibliography," The Black Scholar, December 1971. There are working bibliographies in a number of books on the Black woman; such as, Joyce A. Lander's Tomorrow's Tomorrow: The Black Woman; Toni Cade's The Black Woman; and Monroe N. Work's A Bibliography of the Negro in Africa and America; and John P. Davis' The American Negro Reference Book. The Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor also puts out a number of bulletins on the Black woman.

Obviously, any work of this endeavor encompassed the assistance of many people and many man hours. Therefore, it would be nearly impossible to name all persons that assisted in this monumental work, however, I must express special acknowledgement to the following: Miss Louise M. Roundtree, Head Librarian at Carnegie

Library, Livingstone College, Salisbury, North Carolina, who offered many invaluable suggestions and leads to additional sources; Dr. Oscar Williams, Chairman of the Black Studies Department at Bradley University, Peoria, Illinois, who is preparing an anthropology on the Black woman and shared with me some of his references; the entire staffs of Livingstone College Library, Bennett College Library, North Carolina Central University Library, Duke University Library and Portland State University Library; the secretaries and work study students of the History and Black Studies Center at Portland State University. Without their assistance this would not have been completed.

I take full responsibility, however, for all errors. I also welcome any corrections of errors or omissions.
